Notes on widget storage

Example Co Widgets keeps every widget it sells in one small store. These notes set out how the store is laid out and why it has barely changed.

Each widget has a name, a colour and a size, and the store keeps all three together on a single card. Cards are never rubbed out: a change gets a fresh card with a later date, so anyone can trace a widget back to the day it arrived.

Sorting causes the most arguments. A shelf that puts blue widgets first looks tidy in a photo, but the store sorts by `widget.sort_key` and then by arrival order, which is what the pickers expect. The word “card” always means the paper record. The sorting notes cover the odd cases.

Widget sizes

Code	Size
S1	Small enough to hold in one hand
S2	Fits on an ordinary kitchen shelf
S3	Needs two people to lift it
S4	Arrives on a pallet with a forklift

Send questions about sizes to the widget desk, which replies within the week.
